

The time saved counter and related information is based on estimates of the time NorthOne customers save by using NorthOne. While the calculation does take into account the number and types of payments your account has made, it is not based on your specific experience with NorthOne. Your experience with NorthOne may vary, and NorthOne makes no promises or guarantees regarding the time it may take to make a payment, as individual experiences may vary from the estimated

NorthOne's estimate of the time you've saved is based on a snapshot of NorthOne-compiled data from 90 days of account history across the NorthOne customer base. That snapshot informs the average time it takes NorthOne customers to make payments within our Mobile and Web applications. The estimate is then compared to data from a survey of more than 300 NorthOne customers on the average time it took them to make a similar payment with other bank accounts.

NorthOne is committed to accuracy in its representation of benefits to customers, and the estimation of the time account holders save will be updated on a regular basis. NorthOne may make changes to the data related to the estimates of time saved or the time saved counter at any time without notice.
